Triangle Sports Commission

Based in Cary, North Carolina—a hub for amateur sports—the Triangle Sports Commission (TSC) is dedicated to promoting North Carolina’s Triangle area as a major sports destination, particularly for Olympic and amateur sports. Founded in 2001, now in its 20th year, the TSC hosts sports events and activities that help unify the region and substantiate the Triangle’s frequent high rankings as one of America’s best places to live. The TSC is a 501(c)(3) charitable North Carolina non-profit corporation. It is an affiliate of North Carolina Amateur Sports, one of our country’s oldest sports commissions, which owns and produces the State Games of North Carolina and Cycle North Carolina. The TSC has been a long-time U.S. Olympic Committee Community Partner. We are proud to support our U.S. Olympic team and the Olympic movement.

A Glance at the History of Sports in the Triangle

From the State Games of North Carolina to NCAA Championships, the Triangle area allows for a multitude of events. The U.S. Olympic Festival of 1987 is a prime example of what the Triangle can offer. It was the single greatest event in North Carolina history as it offered competition in 34 Olympic and Pan American Games sports across the entire Triangle. Events were held at multiple venues including four major universities in the area: North Carolina Central University, NC State University, Duke University, and the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill. With the Triangle's massive number of venues within a 25-mile radius, the region has the capacity for virtually any event.

Of course, the Triangle hosts far more than multi-sport tournaments. As home to 10 colleges and universities, the area has hosted numerous Atlantic Coastal Conference, MEAC, and CIAA conference championships, NCAA Championships, and state high school championships. NC State's PNC Arena, home to the NHL Carolina Hurricanes, has hosted the NHL Draft, NHL All-Star Game, and the NHL Stanley Cup Playoffs.

The venues in the Triangle go beyond just the facilities at the prestigious universities. The Triangle is home to the Durham Bulls Athletic Park, the USA Baseball National Training Complex, Cary Tennis Park, and WakeMed Soccer Park. All are capable of hosting large scale events. The Durham Bulls Athletic Park is home to one of the most well-known Triple-A baseball teams in the country, and the size and quality of the stadium shows that. The USA Baseball Training Complex has been host to numerous USA Baseball tournaments of multiple age levels as well as the home of the UNC-Chapel Hill Tar Heels in 2008. The Wake Med Soccer Park, home of the USL North Carolina FC and NWSL NC Courage, has been host to ACC and NCAA Soccer Championships, NWSL Playoffs and Women's International Champions Cup, Rugby 7's Olympic Qualifying Tournament and Collegiate Championships, as well as Cross Country championships like the Great American Cross Country Festival.

The history shows that the Triangle has developed an impressive resume of events. The Triangle can stage a large-scale tournament, exhibition game or championship game for virtually any sport across the board. We hope that the Triangle's notable history will show that it can host the event of your choice.

The Triangle has continuously grown throughout the years in the number of facilities built and existing venues renovated. Capital City BMX at Lions Park has brought BMX events to the Triangle. Helping to add more baseball to the Triangle, Ting Park, formally known as the North Main Athletic Complex, is home to the summer collegiate baseball team, the Holly Springs Salamanders. Along with these two venues, Walnut Creek Softball Complex has been renovated and the new Wake Competition Center is under construction. Recently, Duke University completely upgraded Wallace Wade Stadium, built a new track facility, and opened a new softball venue. UNC has a new field hockey stadium, indoor fieldhouse, track complex, and completely rebuilt soccer venue (Dorrance Field). More facilities are on the horizon, so look for additional updates in the next edition of our Triangle Sports Facilities Event Resumé.
